Monthly Literacy Tips

Choosing the right books for two

The first and most critical step is selecting the right books. Consider these tips as you try to find the right books for two. Choose topics that appeal to both your children

Look for interesting books that both children can 'read,' such as, Blue Hat, Green Hat by Sandra Boynton or Five Little Monkeys Jumping on the Bed by Eileen Christelow. Preschoolers can count and name colors, while toddlers will be enchanted by the colorful illustrations. Moreover, the catchy beat and refrain will help both your children become aware of the sounds of the language, while laying the foundation for reading and writing development.

Two's-Pre-K will have an "Eating the Alphabet party on January 20th, to end our week of nutrition. This will give the children an opportunity to try some new foods.

"Eating the Alphabet," by Lois Ehlert, lists several healthy foods for each letter of the alphabet and includes some less common foods that preschoolers might like to try.
